REVIEWS

• CELEBZTER

Sure, it's cute and colorful but how does it sound? We're happy to report that the new Mini Muvo from Creative has serious bass chops, perfect for beach or pool parties. Tested with our kick-ass playlist — heavy on Ariana Grande, Izzy and Jay-Z — the mini speaker didn't disappoint. The portable, water-resistant wireless speaker also has a long battery life of up to 10 hours, and when it runs out of juice, just re-charge via it's Micro USB port.

• TWIN GEEKS

Battery life is a pretty impressive 10 hours, and I found myself casually using it around the house for days without having to recharge. I also found myself casually using it around the house because it's great. The two full-range micro drivers are working their little socks off, making the Muvo Mini significantly louder than you'd imagine. The speakers are front loaded so it does help when you're facing in it's general direction. There's also an oversized front bass radiator that you can feel wobbling away, adding oomph to your comings and goings. Nothing sounds muddled and whilst the sound doesn't quite manage "sparkling", I was generally very pleased with the results.

• TORONTO THUMBS

Overall, the sound quality is quite good. Sound separation and clarity are both great; I listened to several different acoustic jazz and blues songs, as well as classical – and I found that I could distinguish different instrument groups (if not individual instruments) with little difficulty. Electronica, pop, and rock music also play quite effectively on the MUVO mini, thanks to a great dynamic range.
